

Consell de Formentera president and tourism councillor Alejandra Ferrer, together with Formentera's councillor of environment Antonio J Sanz, welcomed attendees of the Posidonia Project Forum to the working groups organised for the occasion. With everyone from Formentera and Balearic government personnel to representatives of local businesses, civil society groups and NGOs, the groups will tackle a range of issues related to water, waste, plastics, mobility on land and at sea, the energy transition and posidonia seagrass.

The president told attendees that "tomorrow will begin with a vision—put together today, from the reflections and analysis in this first sessions—of new priority areas and a pledge of forward action". She encouraged everyone to "put it all on the table in terms of the challenges to the environment and sustainability that we'll be facing in the coming years".

Open to the public, tomorrow's Forum starts with a presentation of today's work as well as a look at the projects that received funding in 2017. Talks, documentary screenings and round-table discussions are on the agenda as well. The complete programme is available at htt ps://www.saveposidoniaproject.org/forum-posidonia-2019/
