

The language advisory service of the Consell de Formentera is teeing up a new round of courses for adults keen to study the Catalan language. A total of seven groups will gather for classes in the morning or evening beginning 11 March. Morning classes will play out in the adult education centre, or Escola d'Adults, and evening lessons are scheduled for the secondary school, IES Marc Ferrer. Instruction will be available at the A2, B1, B2, C1 and C2 levels.

The period of registration goes from 2 to 10 March and signups can be completed at no charge between 9.00am and 2.00pm at the Citizen Information Office (OAC, carrer Ramon Llull, 6).

This round of classes is meant to compliment an earlier round that took place from October to February. The latest series of classes will conclude just in time for the official tests organised in June by the language policy arm of the Balearic government.
